PHYSICIAN'S CERTIFICATION of BORROWER'S CONDITION

DIRECTIONS— The United States Department of Education regulations allow students to discharge their federally regulated student loans based on permanent total disability. The definition for permanent total disability is the borrower must be unable to work and earn money or go to school because of injury or illness that is expected to continue indefinitely or result in death. The total disability cannot be based on a condition that existed before the borrower applied for the loan, unless the condition has since substantially deteriorated” (Temporary or Total Disability Certification Form).

The United States Department of Education will allow students who have had federally regulated student loans discharged due to total permanent disability to borrow additional funds, providing the student:

- “(A) obtains a certification from a physician that the borrower is able to engage in substantial gainful activity (defined as attending school, successfully completing the program and securing employment to repay the new loan), and;
- (B) sign a statement acknowledging that the loan the borrower receives cannot be cancelled in the future on the basis of any impairment present when the new loan is made, unless that impairment substantially deteriorates” (Federal Register, Vol 59, No 228, Tuesday, November 20, 1994, Rules and Regulations, 61215.)
